Live pleasures, pure temptation

by MALCOLM STONE

Two full houses, one for each show, should dispell any doubts about the drawing power of the "Temptations" and their Motown sound here.

The crowd started lining up for the 7:30 show about 6 p.m. and by the time the doors opened at 7 p.m. there were two columns of fans reaching to the corners in both directions in front of the Men's Gym.

The first early crowd was relatively quiet, reflecting curiosity and subdued excitement. Not at all diehard "temp" fans, but rather a kind fringe group that enjoyed the sounds on the way to one of the dances.

But, this was only a general feeling. There were a few "together" people at the first show who arrived after Brenda and the Tabulations had come stage and came in "movin and groovin" to the beat.

Brenda and the Tabulations, three girl vocalists and a four piece band, warmed the crowd up slowly through tunes by the Beatles, Burt Bacharach, a Temptations hit, and some of their own including "Right On the Tip of My Tongue" and "Don't Make Me Over."

Then they declared they were going to take the audience "higher and higher." That one brought the crowd to its feet and paved the way for the "Tempta".

The "Tempta" came on like a whirlwind and continued like a perpetual motion machine, showing a great deal of class as they overcame a bouncy stage and a dead microphone without a hitch.

Even though the "Tempta" brought the crowd to its feet for ten minutes at the end of the first show it was obvious it was not quite together yet. The crowd for the second show was there long before the end of the first one, and they were a different type. They had come to see the Temptations and they were ready to enjoy the show. When the doors opened at 9:30 four or five anxious fans battled each other to a standstill in the doorway before yielding to an orderly procession. They were louder, more boisterous, filling the generation gap with mutual appreciation for the music.

The soul sisters and brothers were as "clean" as the fans at a Muhammad Ali fight. This group was ready from the "git go" and Brenda and the Tabulations responded with a livelier show. Two girls rushed down the aisle between the reserve seats and tried to dance, and the ushers had to repel them twice.

The "Tempta" held a group meeting between shows and worked out their problems and were ready for their second show. Every hit tune brought thunderous applause. They sang such hits as "Cloud Nine", "I Wish It Would Rain", and "Just My Imagination". They even did some of those tunes that Dennis Edwards referred to as "sexy", the tunes from the early days when bass singer Melvin Franklin got to do his "thang".

They sang "My Sweet Lord" and closed out the show on a theme of peace, love, and brotherhood, a fitting ending to an evening of music that was pure pleasure.

CABLES U.N.

China expected soon

by BRUCE WM. MUNN

United Nations (UPI)—Communist China acknowledged its acceptance by the United Nations Friday and said it would send a delegation to the General Assembly "in the near future."

No date was specified in a cablegram received by Secretary General Thant from Chi Peng-fei, acting foreign minister in Peking. But an informed diplomatic source here said, without confirmation, that a sizable delegation could be expected about next Thursday.

A U.N. spokesman said there was no confirmation "in the house" for this report. In a separate statement which was transmitted by the New China News Agency (NCNA) but not sent to U.N. headquarters here, Peking demanded the expulsion of Taiwan from all agencies of the United Nations.

"All the representatives of the Chiang Kai-shek clique must be expelled from the United Nations organization and all its bodies and related agencies," said the NCNA in a dispatch from Peking. The transmission was monitored in Hong Kong. As did the cablegram to the U.N. the NCNA dispatch said China would send a delegation soon to the U.N.

The cablegram from Peking, a message in English, was the first communication received directly by the United Nations from Communist China.

A spokesman was sent here in 1960 to discuss the Korean War.

The General Assembly, by a 76-36 vote last Monday night, approved an Albanian resolution to give China's seat in the United Nations and its affiliates to Peking and to expel Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese nationalists.

Thant sent Peking a message immediately advising it of the assembly's action. He followed up with another cablegram Wednesday urging immediate appointment of a representative to the Security Council. That Chi himself will lead the delegation.

If the Chinese Communist delegation had arrived by Saturday, the Peking

There had been speculation that Peking would designate Huang Hua, its ambassador to Canada, to be its first representative here. But diplomatic sources now believe representative could have taken over at Sunday midnight as November president of the Security Council.

This could have been achieved, if the requirement for presentation of credentials to Thant 24 hours before had been observed and Peking had signified that it wanted to be known here officially as the "People's Republic of China".

'To talk, to listen, to share views'

Congressman Burt Talcott, of the 12th District, was a guest of the California College Republicans Friday morning in the CU Plaza to answer questions in an open forum with students.

Talcott related that his main objective was "to talk, to listen, to share views, and to have an open discussion about federal legislation and foreign affairs."

The bulk of the questioning centered around Talcott's voting actions in regards to Vietnam. He said that he would like to see total withdrawal but thinks Nixon's present plan of deescalation is going quite well. "We ought to be grateful for what progress we've made. . . Talcott feels that by withdrawing immediately we would leave the South Vietnamese unable to properly defend themselves. He also stated that on a graphic scale we would find "cost and troop involvements in the war have gone down since the election of President Nixon." He disagrees with "the (United States) running of the war", and with the idea of a sanctuary and thinks it was wrong not to involve South Vietnam in "their" war soon enough. He said he resented these things and spoke out about it, but we must "respect the views of the other persons who initiated this thing".

Referring to a questionnaire that he sent out in June to persons in his district, Talcott announced that the majority favored the President's action in Vietnam and that this majority will get stronger as we "continue reduction of the war and tensions throughout the world are reduced—contributing to world peace".

Further questioning tackled the United Nations dispute over

SAC agenda

Both the Student Affairs Council (SAC) and the San Luis Obispo city council meet tonight to discuss important matters relating to students.

Starting at 7:30, the SAC meeting will be highlighted by the introduction of an abortion resolution by the Sisters United. This resolution is to be an endorsement of the Women's Nation Abortion Action Coalition, according to Marinae Doshi, ASI vice president.

Also on the agenda will be two bills concerning the election committee, whether the people on the committee are to be picked or are to be elected by the student body. Participation in a peace parade will also be discussed.

Highlighting the 7 p.m. city council meeting will be a proposal concerning the Environmental Center, a collection center for recycling trash. Also to be discussed will be bicycle routes and park ordinances concerning motorcycles.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Card pays for itself'

Editor:

Cal Poly's health program has been and remains totally student financed. The after hour (nights and week-ends) portion is provided by student participation in the Campus Health Plan ($25 per academic year or $10 per quarter). Those students who fail to preplan by this prepayment are then charged on a fee for after hour service.

Historically, about two-thirds of the total student body participates. The reduction in participation this year to 50 per cent has not been accompanied by a concomitant reduction in after hour cases; the net effect is the marked increase in patients after hours who have no health card and, therefore, are being charged for the medical service. Obviously, medical needs have not changed; however, the method whereby students finance their program is being altered.

There is no additional charge for after hour visits or campus hospitalization for card holders; the charge for non card holders: Single after hour visit exceeds the quarterly health card fee. Single day in the campus hospital exceeds the annual health card fee.

Rather than to encounter a medical situation that financially "wipes out" a student, an appeal has been made to the Dean for extension of dateline for obtaining the health card. The new date is the 15th of November, and the health cards are available from the Foundation Cashier in the College Union. During this extension, factual information of the health program will be widely promulgated.

Concert choice reflects changing school attitude

Editor:

I would like to address my remarks to Mr. John R. Mitchell and others that think like him.

First, this school is changing. It is adding more liberal, more broadminded, and more soulful people. Which is something I think you are not, judging by your comments alone.

Second, I gather you have your taste for musical groups (Chicago), but you apparently don't take into consideration other peoples taste for music.

Thirdly, an individual will pay $4.50 minimum in a large city (L.A., Frisco, Diego) to see the Tempts, so $3.50 is very inexpensive for reserved seats to those of us who dig on the Tempts.

In the three years I have been at this school, this is only the third "soulful" group I have seen perform or even be billed at this school (Ray Charles and Ike and Tina Turner are the other two).

Isn't this saying something to you about how often you get to hear your type of music; judging from the number of other groups that perform on this campus yearly!

I must congratulate the Homecoming Committee for having made such a fine selection. And I will say this "Tempting Temptations" will be supported by the Black, Chicano, and White "Soulful" people of this school and community.

Mrs. Yvonne Maddox

Students have personnel input

Editor:

The complete text of my letter to the editor did not appear in the Oct. 29 issue of the Mustang Daily. Leaving the last several sentences out does not convey the intent of my original letter. The complete last paragraph submitted to you was:

"Speaking for myself, I regret the fact that students are not permitted to participate in the deliberations of the Personnel Review Committee. However, students may appear as witnesses and testify for or against a person whose case the PRC is reviewing. In this sense students still have a means of input to the deliberations of the PRC, which is in conformity with the letter as well as the spirit of the law. In the past students did provide invaluable input to the discussions and deliberations of the PRC and their services were most appreciated. It is unfair and unjustified, however, to blame Professor Rhoads, or anyone else on this campus, for the actions of the Trustees who brought about the recent changes in Title V."

Stay in place!

Editor:

This is an open letter to all bicycle riders.

Please use the bike lanes! They were installed for your use at the expense of what has been estimated as some 300 parking spaces.

I don't know how many times I've poked along behind a bicycle riding in the street when there was a bike lane right there. It's impossible to go around you because the car lanes are narrower due to the bike lanes. This causes a tie-up of traffic as well as a danger to you.

Please help the bike lane project become a success. Use the lanes!

Pozo alive and kicking

Editor:

The rumor spread in the Mustang Daily about the closing of the Pozo Saloon is inaccurate.

The proprietor who previously leased the premises moved to Atascadero with his beer license.

The owner of the property is now operating it and all its rustic charm and atmosphere is still there. The only difference is that after a long day or hard riding in the mountains one must be content with root beer rather than beer.

Where else can one get hot home made chili for 40 cents and a large mug of root beer for 15 cents and enjoy it while looking at souvenirs of the Old West?

Trials of our coast's beauty

The California Senate Committee on Natural Resources is slated to discuss today the sole surviving coastline protection bill still alive at the 1971 legislative session. Already approved by the Assembly, AB 1417 must pass the senate committee before moving to a general vote in the upper house.

Since being authored by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty (D-Beverly Hills), the bill has picked up an impressive list of sponsors from both houses and both parties. By all rights, it should clear the legislature easily, yet it stands a distinct possibility of dying in the senate committee.

The natural resources committee has killed three other similar coastline protection bills this year—all seemingly weaker than Sieroty's bill. Since then, however, public support of the measure has magnified and there is an added possibility of passage.

Unless altered by the committee, the bill would create the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission and six regional commissions. The intent would be to control development along the state's 1,100 mile coast. A plan would be presented to the legislature in 1975 regarding long-range coastal development.

But more importantly, in the meantime any development that could cause permanent damage to the coastline area would be prohibited.

Opponents of the bill point out the subsequent loss of local control by local agencies should the commission assume power. True. However, local agencies have held power to this point and a review of the eyesores and pollution along the coast bear strong testimony to their actions—or inactions.

The Sieroty bill would not halt development along the coast but would insure an orderly development of the coast until a comprehensive plan could be acted upon.

One does not have to be an artist or poet to appreciate the beauty and splendor of the California coast. There is not reason this beauty and splendor should eventually become part of the past. AB 1417 can provide the necessary protection. We recommend its passage.

Friday an aide to Sieroty told Mustang Daily in all probability the bill will not come up for a vote in the senate natural resources committee Monday. Chances are the vote will not be taken until Wednesday at the earliest. That means the public has only a few more days to have its say on this crucial issue.

"To talk, to listen . . ."

the two Chinas. Talcott answered that he personally favors a "two-China policy"—the admittance of Red China and the retention of the Republic of China. "It is wrong to expel a member of the United Nations, as it may mean the demise of the United Nations", said Talcott. He regards the United Nations as no longer a "peace-keeping" organization but primarily a "forensic" forum for international affairs.

In regard to low-cost public housing, Congressman Talcott replied, "there is no low-cost housing—only low-rent housing, and it should be governed by the 'local people', not a government 3,000 miles away."

Talcott ended the discussion by saying that he appreciated talking to the students and that he would like the opportunity to come back again.

To change abortion laws

November 1, 1971 Monday, Mustang Daily

Abortion laws were discussed at length at a gathering co-sponsored by Sisters' United and SANP. Guest speaker at the affair was Judy Kleinberg, representative of the Women's National Action Coalition.

Miss Kleinberg is touring Northern California in an attempt to make people more aware of the reasoning behind changing abortion laws. The slogan of WNAC is "women's right to choose for herself how many children she wants to have and when she wants to have them."

The WNAC is conducting a national campaign to turn public opinion in favor of repealing abortion laws and restrictive contraceptive laws. The WNAC feels that success in their goals will help all women because, as Miss Kleinberg said, "As long as there is a restriction on them, women are going to feel like criminals."

U.S. in court over weapons explosion test

by ISABELLE HALL

Washington (UPI)—Charging the Amchitka Island nuclear explosion could trigger an earthquake and tidal wave like that which struck the Hawaiian islands in 1946, conservationists made a last-ditch legal attempt Friday to halt the underground weapons test the United States is set to carry out next week.

The government decided early Friday to abandon its claim of executive privilege and turn over for court review secret documents which conservationists say will prove their claim that the blast will cause serious environmental damage. David L. Sive, attorney for the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility and six other groups opposing the test, promptly asked U.S. District Judge George L. Hart to let him see the documents and to grant his plea for a preliminary injunction to halt the explosion.

The government promised to hand over the documents by the end of the day. It seemed unlikely Hart would have a chance to examine them and render his decision until sometime this weekend or possibly even today.

An adverse ruling could again be appealed in the increasingly complex legal maneuvering intended to prevent the five-megaton explosion, the biggest ever detonated by the United States.

Miss Kleinberg suggested that anyone interested in seeing the present abortion laws changed in California should sign up as a co-plaintiff in the class action suit, soon to be filed by WNAC. Petitions are available in the ASI office.

According to the petition, "The law suit would be filed by a group of California women, representing all California women." Any woman of child bearing age is eligible to sign the petition.

As part of the national campaign the WNAC has scheduled two demonstration marches for Nov. 20 to show how many people are interested in changing the present abortion laws. The marches will take place in San Francisco and Washington D.C.

Sisters' United is making plans to attend the march and have pledged their support in publicizing the abortion campaign.

The Sisters' United group, whose purpose is to increase the awareness of women in the community and sponsor constructive action, will also take part in the Peace Parade scheduled for Nov. 6 in San Luis Obispo. The theme of the parade is "The Horrors of War and the Joys of Peace".

Sisters' United meets every Thursday at 2 p.m. in the College Union. All women are invited to attend.

Jobs in math

Dan Stubbs, a Computer Science instructor at this college, will be the guest speaker for the Math Club meeting Wednesday.

Stubbs will speak on "Change Majors and Get a Job." He will have information on the job market in the 1970's for pure mathematicians versus applied mathematicians.

Now working on his doctorate, Stubbs received a B.S. in Aeronautical Engineering from Purdue and an M.S. in Mechanical from Rensselaer University.

All interested students and faculty are welcome to attend the Math Club meetings. The meeting Wednesday will be held in Rm. 123 of the Agriculture Engineering Building at 7 p.m.

Mustang quarterback Steve Bresnahan lets one go during Saturday's 20-7 loss to Long Beach. Bresnahan was injured late in the third quarter.

Mustangs fall to '49ers

Long Beach State tailback Terry Metcalf scored two fourth period touchdowns to lead the '49ers to a 20-7 victory in spoiling the Mustangs' homecoming Saturday at Mustang Stadium.

The '49ers were slow in getting started as they tried to put together a passing attack but were held to low yardage. The Mustang offense took command of the first half with a well balanced rushing and passing game, while the Poly defense held Long Beach to outside of the 40 yard line throughout the first half.

Control changed directions, however, as Long Beach switched to a ground game and gained nearly 200 yards in rushing during the second half. Metcalf let loose for 134 yards rushing in the half after only gaining 34 yards in the first. The 5'10", 185-pound junior scored all three of the '49ers touchdowns.

Mustang quarterback Steve Bresnahan was hit hard in the abdomen with four minutes left in the third quarter but was able to return late in the game. He was hit again, however, and was taken by ambulance to the Cal Poly Health Center. Mustang Daily contacted Coach Joe Harper, yesterday, who reported that Bresnahan was "improving." "It's too early to tell whether or not he'll be able to play next Saturday at Las Vegas," said Harper. "We'll just have to wait and see."

The Mustang had two golden opportunities in the first quarter to build a sizeable lead. They reached the Long Beach 16 yard line and missed a field goal attempt and later reached the '49ers 11 yard line where they ran out of downs, wasting a drive of 45 yards.

Cal Poly's lone score came with 3:28 remaining in the second quarter when tailback Darryl Thornes ran three yards for a touchdown, capping a 55-yard drive. This was Thornes' first game since the season opener when he injured his rib cage.

The first Long Beach score came with three and a half minutes gone in the third period when Metcalf capped a 71-yard drive with a three-yard run for a touchdown. The Mustangs could not generate a lengthy drive in the period.

Metcalf went six yards at the start of the fourth quarter to score the second '49er touchdown after a 43-yard drive. He later ran one yard for the final score of the game to complete a 97-yard attack.

Cal Poly rushed for 119 yards and passed for 117 yards for a total offense figure of 236 yards. Long Beach rushed for 260 yards and passed for 83 yards for a total figure of 343 yards.

Bresnahan completed 10 of 19 passes for 117 yards and had two intercepted. Mike Amos caught six of these passes for 67 yards.

Ski action film, fashions shown

The French have a saying, "Toutes Nieves, Toutes Montagnes" which means "Any Snow, Any Mountain." Stretch your mind and body to the limit of its ski ability, then add about fifty pounds of cameras and a tripod, and chase some of the world's best skiers around all winter.

Condense all this into a ninety-minute, family-rated, fantastic color film and that's "Any Snow, Any Mountain," produced by Warren Miller.

This new winter action film produced by one of the world's leading ski film producers will be shown at Chumash Hall in the CU on Saturday, November 6, at 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

The program will also present a fashion show featuring ski fashions from local merchants, announced by Jennie Hodel at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Tickets are available at the CU at the following prices: children under 12, 75 cents; students, $1; and adults, $1.75.

Autocross results

Jack Ashcraft has been named the winner of the top title of the day in last Sunday's Sports Car Club autocross held on this campus. The event was sponsored by the Sports Car Club.

Ashcraft drove to a first place finish in the "B" class cars. Second place went to Rick Wyckoff, president of the club. Bill Charron was third.

Class "D" place winners were Gil Hoffman, first; Mike Louton, second; and Ken Williams, third.

Wyckoff said the trophies will be awarded during the club's Wednesday meeting.
